

Title of Thesis	A Study on the Factor that Determine the Type of Investments Amongst Working Adults in Miri
Name	Lu Xiang Jun
Program	BA (Hons) Accounting and Finance (In collaborations with UCSI)
Date of Submission	August 2021
Student Thesis Code	2021/AUG/UCSI/BAAF/08

ABSTRACT

Choosing the right type of investment is really important. This is because just earning money isn't going to be meeting needs. People working so hard to fulfil the needs and wants. Therefore, we need to spend carefully to get a good rate of return and to achieve our own goals. This research will be helpful for the existing to find out Miri working adults choosing their desired type of investment in the future and identify what are the factors will affect them for choosing the investment. This research presents analysis of research in the area of factors that determine the type of investment amongst working adults when doing the investment. Riskiness and return of investment believed is one of the primary factors which will affect working adults to choose the type of investment in nowadays. Moreover, there are also factors including income level of confidence and education level. The objectives of this research study were to determine what factors determine the type of investment amongst working adults. A questionnaire was developed to examine and attributes that may have influenced working adults in Miri when determine the type of investment they want to invest in. The questionnaire was completed by 50 working adults in Miri, Sarawak.